

Title: Supporting Measurement and Replication Techniques for Family Planning High Impact Practices: An Assessment of the Scale, Reach, Quality and Cost of Implementation in Burkina Faso

Informed Consent Form
Interviews with Managing Authorities regarding Activity-Based Costing Immediate Postpartum Family Planning (IPFP) & Mass Media (MM)

INFORMATION NOTE

I work for the Higher Institute of Population Sciences (ISSP). We would like to invite you to participate in a research study conducted in collaboration with the Ministry of Health and FHI 360 and funded by the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation. The purpose of this research is to assess the implementation and scale-up of specific family planning practices, including immediate postpartum family planning and mass media. You were selected because you have information on the activities and resources involved in implementing these practices. This study will help inform decisions to improve family planning programs in Burkina Faso. We want to be sure that you understand the purpose and your responsibilities in the research before you decide if you want to be in it. Feel free to ask me to explain any information.

Research Information

What is the objective of this study? The objective of this study is to assess the scale, reach, quality, and cost of implementing specific family planning practices called High Impact Practices (HIPs), including immediate postpartum family planning.

Why was I invited to participate? We will interview about 40 program implementers and policy makers in Burkina Faso. We will also interview about 70 unit chiefs and between 70 and 140 providers at about 70 health facilities who provide immediate postpartum family planning. We will speak with about 40 technical or financial staff who are qualified to provide information about activities and resources involved in program implementation. We are asking you to participate in this study because you have important information about the activities or resources related to the practices supported by your organization, including immediate postpartum family planning and/or mass media.

What will happen if I participate? If you decide to take part in this interview, we will talk about the different activities that organizations like yours take part in to deliver immediate postpartum family planning/mass media, and the resources used to conduct these activities. This information will help us assess the costs of implementing high impact practices in family planning. I will use the information you share with me to complete an Excel-based template recording the activities and resources needed to implement these high impact practices. I may ask you to look at these templates or even to add to it yourself if it is easier, and we may decide to have a follow-up conversation to capture all the details. You can ask other people at your organization to help you with some of the information. If you agree to participate, the interview will take about 90 minutes.

Risks and discomforts

What are the risks of this study? Your participation in this research poses little risk to you.

You are free to decide if you want to be in this research. Your decision about whether to participate in this interview will not be shared with anyone. If you decide not to participate, this will not be reported to anyone. Your employment will not be affected. You do not have to answer any questions you do not want to answer. You can stop the interview at any time. If you agree to participate and then you change your mind, you may end your participation without any penalty at any time. If you do not want to be interviewed, there are no other ways to participate in this research study.

Benefits

What are the benefits of participating? There are no direct benefits to you from taking part in this research. The information you share with us will help the Ministry of Health and other program managers in Burkina Faso and global funders and implementers understand how to improve immediate postpartum family planning programs.

Confidentiality and Privacy

Will my participation in the study be confidential? This interview will be conducted in private. The information you provide will be kept confidential to the best of our ability. If you ask other people at your organization to help you with some of the information, we will ask them not to share that you participated in this survey or what you said. But we cannot guarantee that they will keep the discussion private. Your name will not be linked to what you tell us. Information from the interview will be provided to the study team for analysis. We will share information collected in this study with others, but the information will be provided in such a way that neither you nor your organization can be identified. We will not link any results directly to you or your organization.

Additional information

What will I receive to participate? You will not receive any compensation for your participation in this study.

Where will the results of this study be presented? The results of the study will be discussed with the Ministry of Health, with family planning implementers and with donors in Burkina Faso. They will also be presented in global consultations on high impact practices to help inform decisions on measurement for high impact practices in family planning. The results can be published in scientific reports or manuscripts and presented at scientific conferences.

Who reviewed the study for ethical reasons? This study was reviewed and approved by Burkina Faso's Ethical Committee for Health Research (CERS) and the FHI 360's Protection of Human Subjects Committee.
